This Washboard will wear for years

IT'S so strong you could stand on it without doing it any harm. The rubbing surface is heavy SMP Pearl Enamel, positively smooth as glass, but unlike glass, it cannot break! And it won't wear out, like zinc. The back is heavily re-inforced with wood. It's a washboard that will last for many years, and remember, it is SMP made.

NAMAKA

Miss Watson left during the week for Vancouver and Victoria, accompanied by Miss Margaret Watson, of Calgary. They will return by Revelstoke and the lakes.

A typographical error was made in last week's news; the name "Thorsen" should have been "Thiesse".

Mr. Geo. Peterson and boys visited the oil wells over Sunday.

Mr. E. J. Garland, U.F.A. representative, delivered an interesting talk to a well-filled hall on Saturday evening.

We regret to learn that Mary Louise McElroy met with a painful accident while playing; her right arm being broken.

Grade VIII to IX

NO LIBERAL CANDIDATE

KINGSTON, Ont.—There will be no three-cornered contest in Frontenac-Aldenburg, in the coming federal election, the Liberals having decided not to nominate a candidate. Although no resolution was passed at the meeting pledging support to the Progressive candidate, R. J. Russell, speakers urged Liberals to vote for him against Hon. J. W. Edwards, the Conservative candidate, who was a minister in the Meighen Government in 1921.

BASEBALL

In Pittsburgh, Wilson L. (Chick) Fawcett, ordinarily a mild person, was so excited over a decision by Umpire "Jones" Heardon, which made a Pirates' chief safe at second, that Chick rushed toward the ump to expostulate. While giving a solo indication of a hot argument among the Frenchmen, the Brooklyn player's fist thumped against the ump's manly bosom. Readon immediately swung a right for Fawcett's chin, but his judgment of distance was bad. That ended the story. Fawcett realized he had been wrong. Heardon, regretted his hasty swing, and all was serene for the moment, except that Fawcett was canned.

"Jones" Heardon is well known in this district by the baseball fans who used to watch the Calgary Bronks.

THE ROOKIE PLANS AHEAD

When my playing days are over,
And I get to run a club;
I'll be a popular manager,
And not a grouchy dub.
I'll let the fellows stay out late,
It'll matter not to me;
They can sleep it off 'til after noon,
Just so they're out at three.
I'll let 'em take a little drink,
I'll never say a word;
I'll be a regular guy with all,
And not a crabby bird.
I won't be like Leonard Hill,
Who watches like a hawk;
And every time we bat an eye,
Explodes a fiery squawk.

I'll treat the boys like humans,
And let 'em have their fun;
When I get to be a manager,
I'll show 'em how it's done.
I've got a hunch my system,
Will please the boys immense;
And they'll hustle for the pennant,
By way of recompense.
L. H. ADDINGTON

COBB STILL PLACES T'IM

Ty Cobb isn't playing as a regular Tiger nowadays. He is managing his team from the bench, but still wears a uniform and indulges in daily batting practice. Cobb went onto the field at the Yankee Stadium via the Huguenot's dugout one day during the Detroit series there.

"Howdy, gentlemen!" he said.
"Howdy, yourself!" retorted the Yankees.
"Isn't it time to take off that uniform, old man, and quit kidding the public?"

Cobb laughed at this sally and went to the plate for batting practice.
"Hit one into left field!" one of the Yankees shouted.
"All right!" said Cobb, who promptly drove a terrific liner into the left field stand.

"Now one to center!"
"O. K.," replied Cobb, who shot a snazzy burner over second base.
"Let's see you hit the next one to the right!"

Quick as lightning the Georgia Peach whiplunged a fast ball to the desired locality.
"Foul one into your dugout!"

With a grin Cobb feigned the next delivery, not into the Tiger's dugout, but straight among the Yankees, who tumbled over one another to avoid being hit by the ball.

"Is that all for today?" asked Cobb. The Huguenot said nothing.

JUNIOR TRACK AND FIELD CHAMPIONSHIPS

The Alberta Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada is particularly anxious to have Track and Field Championships for Juniors conducted this year and to save competitors the expense of having to travel long distances and also with the view of encouraging the youth of the Province to take part in the most ancient of all sports it is proposed that meets be held at many points as possible within the Province; that the results of these meets be forwarded to the Hon. Secretary-Treasurer of the Alberta Branch, A.A.U. of C. and after tabulation of the results of the various meets, winners be declared.

It is also proposed that Medals be awarded to the winners of the First, Second and Third in each event and to cover the cost of these medals a sanction fee of ten cents per entrant for each competition holding these meets.

MELLON POINT OF VIEW MEN

Haskatoon, Sas.—There is no one in Mr. Mellon's cabinet as rich as Mr. Mellon, perhaps because there is no one in Canada as rich. But Mr. Mellon has picked the wealthiest men at his disposal and his chief lieutenant, the minister of finance, is Hon. R. B. Bennett, a millionaire, who profits personally by the operation of the protective tariff. With hardly an exception, the other members of the cabinet are men with the Mellon point of view on public affairs, men whom special privilege has made rich, who attacked the recent income tax revisions because they helped the wealthy less than they helped the people of moderate means, who hold that "national policy" consists in assisting the rich to get richer.

SCOUT NOTES

FIRST STRATHMORE TROOP BOY SCOUTS

—O—
 The Troop, who were camping at

Carlsland Bridge for the past ten days arrived in town safely on Sunday last, and all report having an exceptionally good time.

There were no accidents or sickness during the camp and the cost of feeding was less than $3.00 per good meal per day were provided.

A large number of visitors called at the camp and expressed approval at the tidy manner in which everything was laid out. The location was ideal for camping, being near the spring, river and running water.

It is hoped that a large number will go out next year, and that the interest in the Scout movement will be greater than ever.

Parents should endeavour to get their boys to join the organization, the object of which is to make boys grow up to be good citizens, and to encourage clean sport.

Mr. R. P. Barnes, who has been ill for some time, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. E. Ridley, on Monday. Mr. Barnes had but recently returned from Rochester, where he consulted Dr. Mayo. He was about 60 years of age, and had resided at Edmonton and Victoria. The funeral took place on Wednesday from Graham—Irwin's Chapel, Calgary.

Councillor Quirin is away from town spending his two weeks vacation.

"Bill" Saunders, who attended the Elks Convention at Vancouver, returned on Tuesday, bringing back with him several trophies that he captured in the sports events. Bill had a great time at the convention, and also visited Seattle and Tacoma, and finds it mighty tough getting back to regular routine work after hitting the "high spots" in the western cities under such favorable and pleasing conditions.

The Elks will meet at Hamilton, Ont., in 1927, and Bill has started saving up his dimes in anticipation of being amongst those present next year.

He would be a rash man who would say that the Canadian wheat pool has not been a success—So far, says the Financial Post, it has marked about half of Canada's recent crops on world markets at prices that have at least satisfied farmers. They have been higher than the prices obtained by independent American farmers, and while private grain marketing organizations feel that the wheat pool managers have sacrificed wheat throughout, in order to sell it, thus reducing the total average return to the members, this is a charge that can be proven or disproven on the available evidence. Certainly the plan of throwing all wheat in a general pool has brought all the members to the same level; has reduced the speculative element in their business and has put some of the long-headed farmers behind some of the poorer business men among them.

Business men in the West generally are favorable towards the wheat pool idea. It spreads the farmers' income over a longer period and sustains trade on a more level keel throughout the winter and spring.

The real testing time for the wheat pool is not yet. It has consistently sold its wheat on a rising world market. How successful it would be with market conditions again, it is much of a question. The very best business acumen will then be needed to make co-operative selling a success and hold the wheat pool together.

In the meantime, business Canada is wondering how far the wheat pool will go in extending itself. Will the farmers be assessed few cents on each bushel to provide investment funds that will enable the wheat pool to build more elevator chutes, perhaps even to own vessels, etc.? This would make the wheat pool an even more powerful organization, but would also increase its problems.

Aaron Sapiro, the Chicago lawyer, whose silver voice has been responsible for many co-operative movements among farmers here and in the States, urged the farmers of Western Canada to broaden their co-operative efforts, when he spoke to a group of them in Saskatchewan the other day.

"That is the co-operative idea you have got to have in Saskatchewan. I would never be satisfied with my lot if I were not."

STANDARD

Miss Vivian Clifard, formerly of Standard, has just returned from an enjoyable motor trip with her parents through the Banff-Windermere high-way to Vancouver, passing through Spokane and Seattle. From Vancouver they spent a day in Victoria taking a boat, the "Princess Margaret". On their way home Victoria and her mother stopped off at Waterton Lakes, where they spent a week.

ROCKYFORD

At the moment harvesting operations are at a standstill on account of the rain. There is considerable acreage now in stock, and farmers are optimistic about the yield. There is no doubt that it will be somewhat higher than was at first anticipated. Late crops are looking especially good.

Mr. H. Katterhagen has his combine harvester all fixed up and ready to go, and is only waiting for the weather to dry up, as it is absolutely necessary that the grain should be both dried and dry to be successfully harvested by this machine, which, under good conditions, should affect a great saving in expenses, as no time or stooking or bundle hauling is required.

On Wednesday, August 11, a pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Calgary, when Miss Pauline Celestine Griffiths, of Rockyford, was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick Campbell, of Bellesher. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Holtz, of Rockyford. The bride looked charming in a picky rose gown and hat to match. Her brother, Mr. Edward Griffiths was in attendance. Miss Griffiths has been for some time employed in the Rockyford telephone exchange, where her courteous and efficient service, and her personality has made a host of friends, who will wish her all success and happiness in her new home at Bellesher.

Miss Wells, of the telephone staff, has returned from her holidays.

Mrs. Fred Gibson and boys are visiting her sister, Mrs. John Thomas, at Acme, for two weeks.

Mr. W. Arthur, of Empress, has taken up a position with the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Rockyford.

Mr. C. E. Marshall has been transferred from the Ponoka branch of the Commerce Bank to the Rockyford branch.

Messrs Ambrose Wise, L. M. Wise, G. Brooks, H. E. Wise, Sam Howick, F. W. Gibson and Mr. Herge returned last week from a fishing trip at the Highwood River. All report a swell time and tell lots of fish stories, etc.

Mr. Geo. Marshman is up from the States to help out the harvest at the Marshman ranch.

ABOLISH THE SALES TAX

Bridgeburg Review: The Financial Post reports that the Massey-Harris company will earn probably $12 on its common shares this year. The Massey-Harris company is one of the few concerns in Canada which must test competition from all the world without the benefit of protection in the home market.

That sounds like a free-trade argument. It is not, exactly. The Massey-Harris company and other makers of agricultural implements have the additional advantage of getting their raw materials in the lowest market tree of customs duties. Also, it is said that the Massey-Harris plant at Batavia, N.Y., is a prosperous unit.

More important than these, however, is the fact that the Massey-Harris company neither pays sales tax nor has to charge sales tax to its customers. Its prosperity, therefore, is indicative of the benefit that would result from general abolition of the sales tax. The sales tax probably is at the root of a good many of Canada's business troubles. It would have been found economies to have reduced or abolished the sales tax instead of the income tax. The greater number of people would have benefited. The government which abolished the sales tax, whether it is Liberal or Conservative, will have achieved a great reform.

"Queen Elizabeth," wrote a boy, "went on a white horse from Coventry with little on her, and Raleigh offered her his cloak."

Curious indeed must be the mind of the boy have been who defined a cuckoo as "a bird which lays other birds' eggs in its own nests." That his ideas of nature were defective appears again when he said, "Gravity was discovered by Isaac Newton. It is chiefly noticed when the apples are falling from the trees."

A youngster was asked, "What is known as the yellow peril?" A business man on the pavement," he replied.

HEARD ON THE STREET

On Monday evening, after the Garland meeting, one of his most enthusiastic supporters was soliciting the vote of a very enthusiastic toy farmer who had attended the meeting. "Vote for Garland," said the toy farmer, "why I would sooner vote for the devil!" "But," persisted the enthusiastic U.F.A. solicitor, "in the event of your friend not standing, may we count on your support?"

Friend: "Did you get the big estate settled up?"
Lawyer: "Yes, but the heirs almost got a part of it!"

An Irishman and a Yankee were discussing in Calgary how smart they did things at the other side of the pond.

Said the Yankee: "I was going to my work, one morning. The workmen were taking out the foundation of a house. When I came home at night the first tenants were taking to their furniture!"
"Oh, that's nothing," said Pat. "I was going to my work one morning; they were taking out the foundation for a house, and when I came home at night, he jabsers, the landlord was ejecting the first tenants for not paying his rent."

The lawyer's small boy had just been brought to judgment for telling a lie. His sobe having died away, he sat for a time in silent thought.

"Pa," said he, "how long will it be before I stop gettin' paid for tellin' lies, an' begin to get paid for 'em like you do?"

Mrs. McSweeney: "I met Mrs. McDougal down the street and she told me that you told her the news I told you not to tell because Mrs. Brown made me promise not to tell it before she would tell it to me."

Mrs. Smith: "Why, Mrs. McDougal told me she wouldn't tell a soul that I had told her!"

Mrs. McSweeney: "Never mind, I told her that I wouldn't tell you that she has told me that you told her."

Jim Weir says he knows a beautiful young man who was courting a girl, but he was so backward in his love-making that she began to grow impatient. Finally, one night, while they were taking a walk along Railway Avenue, he summoned up courage to put his arm about her. "Do you think I'm making progress?" he hesitatingly asked. "Well at least you're holding your own," was the reply.

"Sir," said the astonished landlady to a guest who had passed his cup for the seventh time, "you must be very fond of coffee."

"Yes, madam, I am," he replied, "or I should never have drunk as much water to get a little—why don't you try some of Martin Garrett's special blend?"

A want ad. for a Calgary office boy had brought many applicants. One little fellow gave the young lady at the information desk a scribbled note for immediate delivery to the boss, which, when opened, read:

"I'm the last kid in the line. Don't do anything until you see me." He got the job. He used his head.

"Let me see," said Spence Hughes, thoughtfully. "I've got to buy some flowers, and some chocolates, and tickets."

"Doing mental arithmetic?" asked Landi.

"No, sentimental arithmetic," was Spence's reply.

"A little girl was coughing her hair. It 'crackled' and she asked her mother why it did."

"Why, dear, you have electricity in your hair," explained the mother.

"We're a funny family, ain't we, mother?" the youngster said. "We've all lit up. I have electricity in my hair and grandma has gas on her stomach."

Police Sergeant: "Is the man dangerously wounded?"
"Faintman: "Two of the wounds are fatal, but the other one isn't so bad."

Any free citizen can do as he pleases except for his conscience, his wife, his landlord, and the neighbors.

A clergyman whose wife is noted for her extreme plainness was lecturing a Sunday-school class of boys on politeness. "When a plate of apples is passed to you," he said, "never take the best-looking one." From the back row came a low tone, "I'll be sure the way he picked his wife."

A farmer came to town to insert an obituary notice.

"How much do you charge?" he asked.
"A dollar an inch," was the reply.
"Good heavens! He was six feet tall!"

The Truro Weekly News carries an article headed: "Baptist Pastor Goes to Paradise." Well, why shouldn't he?

Dr. Moore: "What sort of night did the patient spend?"

Mrs. Miller: "He seemed a little peevish, doctor, he asked for water several times."

Dr. Moore: "I'm, still dilligent, apparently."

Hubbard: "Another new hat! When will you cease these useless purchases you make under the pretext that they are cheap?"

Wife: "But this one wasn't cheap, dearest!"

A friend encountered a Scotchman, just coming back from Florida golf courses, leading an alligator along.

"What are you doing with the alligator?" he asked.

"The son of a gun has got my ball," replied the Scotchman.

A school teacher had been instructing her pupils in Greek mythology. The pupils read the tales aloud, and the next day had to recount them in their own language. One lad, to whom was given the task of telling the story of "The Gorgons," did so in these terms:

"The Gorgons were three sisters that lived in the islands of the deep, somewhere in the Indian Ocean. They had long snakes for hair, tusks for teeth, and claws for nails, and they looked like women, only more horrible."

"Tommy, run and tell Mrs. Jones at the door that I'm out."

"Hello, Mrs. Jones! Mother's out," shouted Tommy.

"Oh, that's too bad. I just came over to borrow some sugar."

"Mother?" Tommy shouted up the stairs, "did you mean that you were out of sugar?"

A kind-looking old gentleman was stopped by a tramp, who asked for money to get a night's lodging.

"Well, look here, my man," the old gentleman said, "what would you say if I offered you work?"

"Bliss yer life, sir," came the reply, "I wouldn't mind a bit. I can take a joke same as most people."

"Why so glum?"

"Why, Mr. Moore has just given me a rest and change for me."

"He advised me where to get the rest, but he didn't come across with where to get the change. Heavily stupefied on his part."

Agent Perry (writing to local real estate): "Please send at once and no move case addressed to you marked 'Books.' It is leaking."

Visitor: "Sorry couldn't get to your wedding."

Film Star: "Never mind, I'll have another one soon."

"Bobby," said the teacher, sternly, "do you know that you have broken a Commandment by stealing James' apple?"

"Well," explained Bobby, "I might as well break one and have the apple as break another and only covet it."

Jack Taylor: "I shall never marry. Think what it takes to keep a daughter in clothes."

Pete Teifer: "Don't stop on that account, Jack. It doesn't take money to do that now."

Scottish minister, fumbling in pockets for sermon notes: "Me friends, I find I've forgotten me notes, so must turn to Divine Inspiration, but I'll be better provided this afternoon."

Neurotic Youth: "Darling, you are the breath of my life."

Fair Telephone Operator: "What, how about holding your breath?"

A deaf woman entered a church with an ear trumpet. Soon after she had seated herself an usher stepped over and whispered, "One foot out, out you go."

A Scotchman fell overboard! A brother Scot tried to save him and shouted, "Here Sandy, save me yer hand!"

"Na, na," replied Sandy, "as me life be against na principles 'a me life to give anything, nor to save me life will I break na principles."

SUGAR BEETS IN THE BOW VALLEY

Many years ago the Bow Valley was referred to as the logical district for the successful production of sugar beets.

Might this not be an opportunity for the Board of Trade of Strathmore to make a move in this direction with the possible result of securing a sugar factory similar to the one located at Raymond. A little effort at the proper time might get the war of some of the "Sugar Kings" and induce them to give this district the one over. They certainly will not come to come when other places are hanging out the invitation signs.

The Montreal Star, discussing the growing of sugar beets, has the following:

"Steady gains are being made in the beet sugar industry in Canada, the United States and England. There are now five factories in operation in England under the stimulus of a government bonus and government support has lately been made manifest by the appointment of a commission to study German methods of producing sugar beets. Alberta and Ontario are the two provinces that have taken the lead in this industry. There is now a prospect that Manitoba will follow their example in building factories. Soil and climate appear to favor high yields and high percentage of sugar. At the Raymond plant in Alberta there were records last year of fields that gave nineteen tons of the acre though the general average which was expected to be from twelve to fifteen tons was pulled down into the neighborhood of eight tons by small yields of badly prepared land. The sugar content as high as 22 per cent, the average being about 15 per cent, which is higher than that achieved in most beet growing sections of the American continent. Manitoba, through the experimental farms in the province, has long been experimenting with sugar beets, mainly with the object of testing the leading varieties for manufacturing purposes. The results that have been generally satisfactory and indicate that beets grown in different parts of the province could meet factory requirements. Establishment of a sugar beet industry in British Columbia will be undertaken if the Provincial Government will subsidize the production of sugar at the rate of $50,000 a year, according to the head of a Vancouver syndicate who has approached the Government. The proposal calls for a factory at New Westminster to cost about $1,250,000, capable of handling one thousand tons of beets per year. The subsidy asked of the Government would amount to on half a cent a pound on all sugar produced up to ten million pounds."

Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada, a publication issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway in discussing the question of sugar beets in Western Canada says: "Sugar manufactured in Western Canada, from beets grown in that territory, is now on the market, and the whole of the Prairie Provinces is elated over the successful launching of the first sugar factory at Raymond, Alberta. There is general enthusiasm over the prospect opening out of beet sugar production in Western Canada on a very substantial basis, for it is confidently felt that this is but the initial step in a great combined agricultural and industrial movement, the first of a chain of factories which will come to dot Southern Alberta from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the international boundary and spread eastward into the prairie of the sister provinces of the west."

There is every reason for this optimistic attitude. The pioneer company which has been responsible for this first Alberta enterprise has declared its willingness and desire to expand through the erection of other factories in the Southern Alberta area, and all conditions are such as to induce them to carry out this program of expansion. It is known that there are other companies anxious to establish sugar factories in other districts of the Canadian West, and circumstances and conditions are combining to bring them to the decision to take this step. That "well begun is half done" offers every indication of being extremely applicable to the production of sugar beets and beet sugar in Western Canada.

Prospects for Development Bright. Prospects are bright for development in Southern Alberta. Despite the unfavorableness of the 1925 season, production was 42,000 tons from 5,700 acres, some field yields nineteen tons to the acre, one 30 tons, and the general average which was expected to be from twelve to fifteen tons was pulled down in the neighborhood of eight tons by small yields on badly prepared land. The sugar content was as high as 22 per cent, the average being about 15 per cent, which is higher than that achieved in most beet growing sections of the American continent.

By-products of the sugar factory at Raymond, it is stated, will make that part of Southern Alberta a great livestock feeding ground. These by-products include pulp and molasses which, with the alfalfa and grain the area produces extensively, constitute an ideal feeding combination for cattle and other livestock. According to report, negotiations are in progress between the sugar company and a big packing concern for the experimental feeding of a large bunch of steers near the factory. From the tonnage of beets sliced at the plant it is calculated that an amount which will be materially increased this year, there are about two thousand tons of syrup and a large quantity of pulp available for stockmen this winter.

The required acreage for the opening of a plant was substantially exceeded in 1925, there being approximately 5,800 acres of beets under cultivation. Five hundred farmers contributed acreage and there is likely hood of Southern Alberta growers doubling this on 1926. A doubling of the acreage would mean the inability of the one factory to handle the supply of beets, and with this possibility in view it is understood that two possible sites for an additional factory in the area have been inspected by officials of the company already in the field. There are thousands of acres of similar irrigable land in Southern Alberta, suited to growing of sugar beets and it is difficult to foresee the limits of expansion.

RACE TRACK AND STAMPEDE GROUNDS

It is understood that the Stampeade grounds that have been used in the past, will not be available for next year's use.

Would this not be an opportunity time to look up available properties that would be suitable for such a purpose and begin to make arrangements to get it into shape for next year?

In securing a property it would be well to keep in view the securing of a satisfactory site that also might be used for a race track, where two meets each year might be held following races at Calgary and the Stampede.

The little town of Cochrane have for years been conducting race meets, and as Calgary grows, the additional support from such a centre would help to make the track a profitable enterprise. It would not cost much to have a local jockey club, which, with very little work along with the Stampede and Carnival Committees

THE STORE OF PERSONAL SERVICE

It would also provide a proper place for any other sports and agricultural exhibitions that may be decided upon for the future.

If a suitable track were provided, there is absolutely no reason why Strathmore cannot conduct a couple of three-day meets each year, and while it probably might not be very profitable, it would help to bring people to town, and help to make it a sporting centre for the Bow Valley. If the track is to be used next year, something should be done this fall as you cannot make a satisfactory track a few days before it is to be used. Men who own good horses will not bring them to a track that is in poor shape. It is not only risky for the shape, but also dangerous for the jockeys.

FERTILIZER FROM AIR IS NOW ASSURED

The modern equivalent of beating words into ploughshares is the manufacture of fertilizers from the air. The original idea came from an Englishman, Sir William Crookes, who, nearly 30 years ago declared that the world ran risks of starvation unless new sources of nitrates were discovered, and then showed how these might be obtained from the air. Since then World War munition plants have been converted into nitrogen-fixation factories and are turning out considerable quantities though far short of the world's requirements. Sufficient progress has been made, however, to justify Sir John Russell, the leading authority on the subject, in saying that the age is banished. Air contains nearly 80 per cent of nitrogen, the fertilizing element, and the amount present in the air gradually goes back into the soil as fertilizer to provide food for two people for the best part of a year. However much the industry develops, it is not likely that the quality of air will be changed, or that humanity will suffer from over-utilization through excess oxygen, because the nitrogen gradually goes back into the air again. More than 1,000,000 tons of fertilizer already are being extracted from the air each year, which industry is thought to be only at its commencement.—Ex.

LATEST FIGURES ON COST OF WHEAT PRODUCTION

The United States Department of Agriculture has recently published cost production figures for wheat for 1925, which show that expenses are quite high and bear out the conclusion formed a few years ago that even the Western States cannot rival the Prairie Provinces. Reckoned on the whole basis the cost was $1.22 for the whole country, the highest being in the North Atlantic states, in the Pacific states the cost was $1.19 and in the Dakotas and Minnesota $1.23. These figures are not the actual out of the pocket expense, which is about all the average farmer figures, but are based exactly as a manufacturer's basis his cost. In the Dakota, use of land for wheat is figured at $4.65 per acre, marketing cost 35 cents, twine, crop insurance, use of implements, storage and other overhead expenses are figured at $2.07 per acre. These are the items that are so frequently overlooked but unless farmers eventually break many farmers' financial backs.

LIBERALS OF BOW RIVER DECIDE TO TAKE NO ACTION
CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 18.—The Bow River Liberals at their convention held in the West Calgary Liberal committee rooms, Tuesday morning, decided not to nominate a candidate for the forthcoming federal election, but to allow R. J. Garland, former U.F.A. member, and A. C. Bernick the Conservative nominee, fight it out at the polls on election day.

The convention was attended by prominent Liberals from all parts of the riding and the decision to remain out of the contest was not made until the matter was thoroughly canvassed and views on the situation exchanged.

WHEAT POOL'S FUTURE

low citizens until every farmer is in the wheat pool, until you have got the control of every stick of timber in which your wheat is raised, control of production credit so it can be brought down to a five per cent. base, control of marketing credit so that you and the best wheat in the world can get credit of four per cent. I will not be satisfied until you are organized on the commodity basis. You are producers, your life stock all the things that will make a rich and complete agricultural life in Saskatchewan.
